Property Description

Architecture in motion. Marbella's most anticipated address.

Vitae Villas, celebrated for its signature villas and distinctive nature-integrated architecture in Monte Mayor and Benahavís, is making its Marbella debut, and doing so in the enclave that is redefining luxury on the Costa del Sol.

Villa C8 is conceived as a sequence of curved volumes that embrace the mountainside and open towards the Mediterranean. There are no sharp angles or flat facades; the architecture flows, descends and folds into the terrain with an organic quality that is unmistakably Vitae Villas. Every level commands unobstructed sea views. The infinity pool doesn't end where the water does; it ends where the horizon begins.

Five suites, a green roof, natural ventilation patios and precisely calculated overhangs that shade in summer and welcome the winter sun. A villa built to be lived in, not just looked at.

And the setting changes everything. Real de la Quinta spans 200 hectares on the boundary of Marbella and Benahavís, bordering a UNESCO-designated biosphere reserve. At the heart of the resort, El Lago Club, a 35,000 m² man-made lake with water sports, spa, heated pool, six-hole golf course, tennis and padel, and a restaurant and lounge overlooking the water. Within walking distance, the Angsana Real de la Quinta by Banyan Tree Group (the prestigious hospitality group's Spanish debut) brings 90 rooms, three restaurants and a full spa. The resort holds BREEAM certification, the first urban development in Spain to do so: a guarantee that the value of this environment is protected.
